

Weekly [06/21] Study

SET

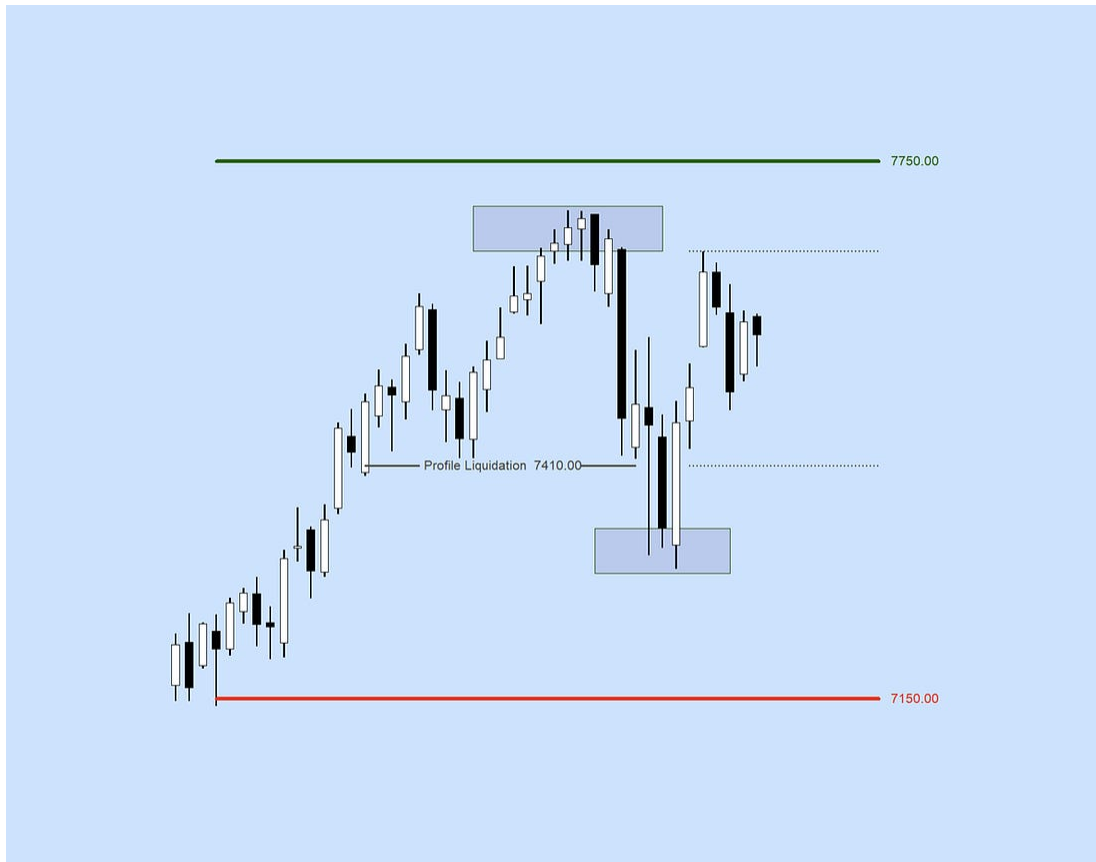

JUN 21, 2026  PAID

Good Morning Traders.

Market has gone through tumultuous headlines since our last release, and with Rollover + Short Week out of the way, I am ready to share my latest thoughts.

1. Earlier, I had warned that the environment we were in was in a way 'trappy' tape.
2. And that a Liquidation of Recent Lows would be a Bullish ordeal.

As of now, the Market indeed trapped participants at Highs; and the Sell-Offs were indeed an Opportunity to Buy the Dip; But something thus far has halted my rally in its tracks, despite being well off their lows. Curious.

Weekly [05/27] Study

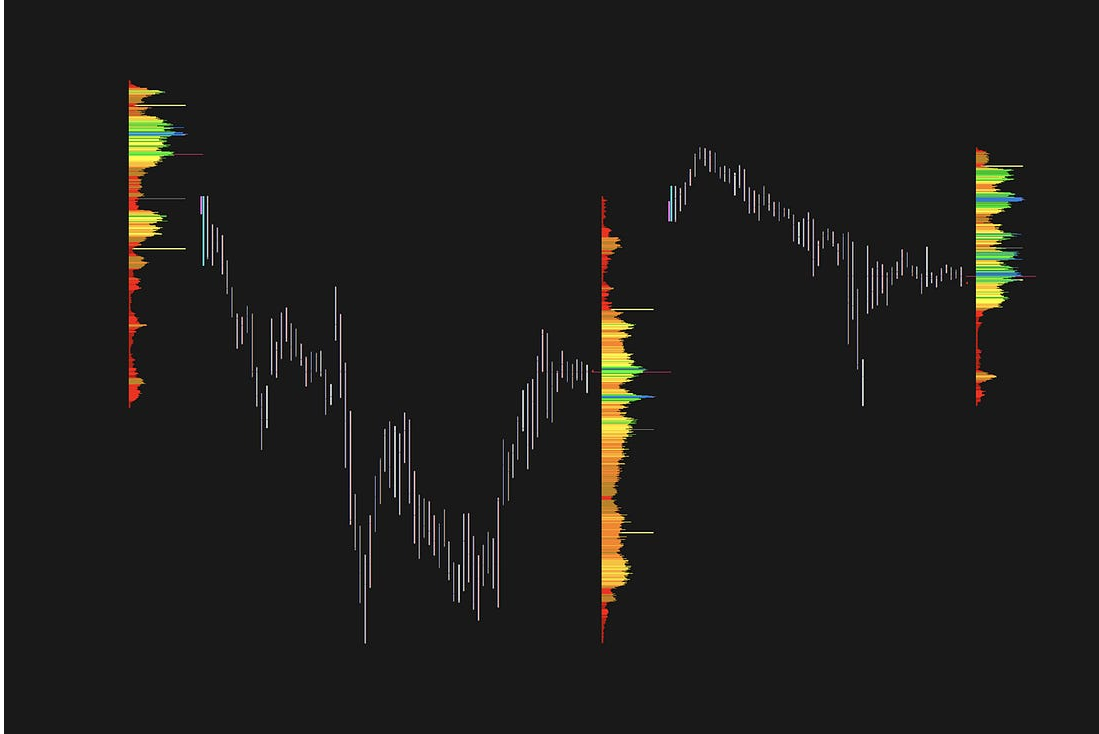

SET • MAY 27

Read full story

My Pullback Scenario would invite an entire liquidation of both Profiles above. Strange world we live in where a -100p or more Liquidation is expected to be actually a Bullish signal. C'est la vie.

In timely manner the Trap tape had unleashed an attack to profile lows. This came much sharper than I had anticipated, to no surprise this also came with the Pattern Day Trader (PDT) rule. I was not entirely hedged for this unfortunately, n'or was I on board given my long-lasting Bullish Sentiment.

Nonetheless, Price sweeps the Stops of any Late-Player holding on to the Rally;
And I meet my conditions to shoot another Swing North.

On Paper, the Market Lifted off Accumulation. It then popped Higher as it was 'questionably manipulated' during a certain Birthday.

This Short Week prompt a Profile Opening Above Highs and Liquidating. This Full Week to come is expected to answer what the Market has been asking.

If either of these Lows Hold, I am expecting a return to ATH and Beyond.

Bullish Outlook Explained

Traces of Strong Passive Buying have been present into these liquidations.

I had mentioned in a previous release we were experiencing moves inside Buyer Accumulation. This allows for Lows to become pressured but sustain at least a bounce. This also allows for Highs not to be pressed, as the Large Buyer is not yet done gathering what they can from this Price.

I take this as my Primary Approach.

Liquidations have been sharp, but in this Auction it's only been present at Highs. Structure, and therefore Timeframe Momentum remain intact. I plan on using this headwinds to carry my Trade(s) Higher and to ATH+.

Bears to the Back Burner

Sellers have been Initiative. This is the one shot in over one-thousand (+1000) points. While I do respect their choice + opportunity, I am taking the approach that it's better to Sell below Lows than expect a Sell to work at Highs.

Hard to argue against the Bears that captured 200p of downside movement, and then a few days later totalling around 500p of downside; But as in the past I am expecting this strength to Fizzle as Larger Buyers deny passage into thinner structure.

There are far too many participants at Highs to Flush proportionally, but if attempts to Sell are made at Lows of this Auction, say something along the lines of 7300 - 7330. From that point and below, I will certainly plan to Sell.

06/21 RTH+

Pivot : 7640

Longs to : 7800 / [xxx]

Shorts to : 7460 / 7330 / 7150

Minor : 7750

Finding Support inside Pivot (7640) and accessing ATH+ is my main interest.

If the Passive Buyer is not ready to lift, 7640 should be temporarily rejected and call for a return visit of 7460~ for one last scoop before liftoff.

All figures have been Rolled to the new contract. Any new calculations will be shared.